tiger woods dropped out at doral and is hoping for the best next week with the arnold palmer invitational at bay hill. the great news is tiger has said he will be ready for the 2012 masters. I think despite the achilles injury, tiger could turn in a great performance at the masters as this should make him a perfect underdog and imagine if tiger could win the masters and wear the green jacket - that would be incredible. so lets check the story on tiger here as he announces he will be at the masters lets get comments with ESPN from tiger woods on how he is doing.
