

---

2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by tire star - 2010/04/03 02:38

---

well my detroit tigers have gone 18-10 in grapefruit play and I like what i see and have a good feeling about the tigers this year. hopefully johnny damon will have a big year for us.

=====

Re:2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by ballpark franks - 2010/04/03 17:39

---

here in orange juice country, the florida marlins look average this year, but the tampa bay devil rays have a good lineup, would love it if they could make it back to the world series like in 2008. but they are in tough with the yankees and red sox in the east. dioner navarro and b.j. upton need to have good seasons.

=====

Re:2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by twins forever - 2010/04/03 19:27

---

we need some sunshine in the twin cities to go with our brand new stadium target field1! 4 time all star pitcher joe nathan will miss the whole season with elbow surgery, so john rauch will be our closer. can't figure out which will be more expensive - the new stadium or our new baby LOL:laugh: great website! go twins!

=====

Re:2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by old skool - 2010/04/14 00:48

---

our texas rangers are at least in the mix this season. yanks and the jays are off to strong starts at 5-2. andy pettite looks great pitching for the yanks. vernon wells swinging a big bat for the blue jays. tigers came back from 5 runs down against the royals today - detroit already has 5 comeback victories this season sitting 6-2. love watching baseball at work...

=====

Re:2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by O.K. USA! - 2010/10/08 10:27

---

well the yanks are up 2-0 on our twins.and that roy halladay no hitter was sure something else for the phils. love being a baseball fan at this time of year!

=====

Re:2010 Major League Baseball season

Posted by fisherman3d - 2010/10/09 19:24

---

how about those phillies with the 4 run comeback last night against the reds to win 5-4. rick ankiel home run in the 11th - that's right in his wheelhouse! great playoffs

=====